Section 2. Composition of Ancestral Domains/Lands. Ancestral Domains/ Lands are all areas generally belonging to the ICCs/IPs, owned, occupied or possessed by themselves or through their ancestors, communally or individually since time immemorial.

Ancestral lands/domains shall include such concepts of territories which cover not only the physical environment but the total environment including the spiritual and cultural bonds to the areas which the ICCs/IPs possess, occupy and use and to which they have claims of ownership.

Ancestral domain consists of lands, inland waters, coastal areas, minerals and other natural resources.

Lands within ancestral domains shall include, but not limited to, ancestral lands, forests, pasturelands, residential lands, agricultural lands, hunting grounds, burial grounds, worship areas, land no longer occupied by the ICCs/IPs but from which they traditionally had access to for their subsistence and traditional activities, home ranges of ICCs/IPs who are still nomadic and/or shifting cultivators, and other lands individually owned whether alienable and disposable or otherwise. Where temporary relocation is determined by the ICC/IP concerned, in consultation with the NCIP and other appropriate government agencies as an exceptional measure, the concerned government agencies shall provide the affected ICCs/IPs with habitable relocation sites and adequate shelter, food, and other basic services, as well as livelihood opportunities to ensure that their needs are effectively addressed.

Section 5. Right to Regulate Entry of Migrants and Other Entities. The collective right to use everything within the domain/land is limited only to the recognized members of the ICCs/IP community. Accordingly, the ICCs/IPs shall have the right to regulate the entry of migrants, including organizations who intend to do business, engage in development or other form of activities, in their ancestral domains/lands. For this purpose, the following shall be applicable:

- a) Migrants. For purposes of these rules, a migrant is a person who is not a native to the ancestral domain or not a part owner of ancestral land but who, as a consequence of social, economic, political or other reasons, such as displacement due to natural disasters, armed conflict, population pressure, or search for seasonal work, opted to occupy and utilize portions of the ancestral domains/lands and have since established residence therein;
- b) Other entities. Other entities shall include all organizations, corporations, associations or persons who intend to enter the ancestral domains/lands for the purpose of doing business, development or other activities therein; and
- c) Procedure for Regulating Entry of Migrants and Other Entities. All migrants and other entities must first secure the express permission of the community's council of elders/leaders who shall, in accordance with their consensus building process, community practices, customs and traditions and upon the Free, Prior and Informed Consent of the community members agree to accept such migrant or entity within the domains, subject to the following conditions:
 - (1) Said persons and entities can be allowed to perform activities as are expressly authorized and which are not inimical to the development of the ancestral domains and cultural integrity of the ICCs/IPs, and
 - (2) The ICCs/IPs shall maintain the right to impose penalties for violation of the conditions in accordance with their customary laws, the Act or its rules and regulations.

The ICCs/IPs' Council of Leaders/Elders, with the assistance of NCIP shall take appropriate action to ensure the effective implementation and enforcement of these rights.

Section 6. Right to Safe and Clean Air and Water.

- a) The ICCs/IPs through their indigenous knowledge systems and practices and their customs and traditions have preserved the environment and have demonstrated their capability to conserve and protect the integrity of their ecological systems. To enable these ecologically-sound and sustainable practices to flourish, the ICCs/IPs have the right to regulate activities that may adversely affect their airspace, bodies of water and lands. Any violation of environmental laws adversely affecting the integrity of the ecological systems in ancestral domains/territories shall be penalized according to customary laws of the ICCs/IPs concerned.

The ICCs/IPs shall take the necessary steps to source out adequate and effective technical and financial support to protect the environment. Government shall adopt effective measures to implement environmental laws that will preserve the quality of freshwater, surface and ground water and minimize air pollution and other forms of pollution that may affect the domains.

- b) Environmental Conservation and Protection Program (ECPP). All persons or entities allowed under the Act to participate in land development, utilization, exploitation, and extraction of natural resources, and government offices or agencies allowed to undertake or implement infrastructure projects within ancestral lands/domains, shall submit to the NCIP, through the concerned Regional Office, a culture-sensitive Environmental Conservation and Protection Program (ECPP) stating in detail the environmental impact of such activities or projects proposed, control and rehabilitation measures and financial resource allocations therefor, implementation schedules, compliance guarantees, and evaluation and monitoring schemes.

Within twenty (20) working days from receipt thereof, the concerned Regional Office shall conduct preliminary evaluation of the ECPP. Based on its findings, the Regional Office may order the ECPP to be revised and/or additional requirements may be imposed and/or other documents may be required. The concerned Regional office shall endorse the ECPP, with recommendations, to the Commission.

Detailed guidelines for the preparation and implementation of the ECPPs shall be prescribed by the Commission based on principles underlying the ICCs/IPs framework for sustainable development of the ancestral domains and nationally-defined environmental standards.

Section 7. Right to Claim Parts of Reservations. The dispossession of indigenous peoples from their ancestral domains/lands by operation of law, executive fiat or legislative action constitute a violation of the constitutional right to be free from the arbitrary deprivation of property. As such, ICCs/IPs have the right to claim ancestral domains, or parts thereof, which have been reserved for various purposes.

a) Procedure for Reclaiming Ancestral Domains or Parts thereof Proclaimed as Reservations.

- (1) For purposes of the enforcement of this right, the NCIP shall review all existing Executive Orders, Administrative Orders, Presidential Proclamations covering reservations within ancestral domains to determine the actual use thereof.

Such certification shall be a condition precedent for the filing of the complaint with the NCIP, through its Regional Offices for adjudication.

Decisions of the NCIP may be brought on Appeal to the Court of Appeals by way of a Petition for Review.

Part III. Rights of the ICCs/IPs to Their Ancestral Lands

Section 1. Right to Transfer Land or Property. The various indigenous modes of acquisition and transfer of property between and among members of the ICCs/IPs shall be recognized as legal, valid and enforceable.

Indigenous property rights arising from marriages between IPs and non-IPs shall be governed by customary laws of the IP spouse. The non-IP spouse shall have usufructuary rights thereto for the maintenance and support of the family.

Section 2. Right to Redemption. Transfer of ancestral lands by IPs to non-IPs attended by vitiated consent or made for an unconscionable price shall, upon investigation and proof thereof, be declared null and void ab initio and the transferor has the right to redeem the property within a period of fifteen years from the date of transfer. In case of fraudulent transactions, the redemption period shall be reckoned upon the discovery of the fraud.

Consent is deemed vitiated when given through error or mistake, violence, intimidation, undue influence, fraud or deceit. The price is considered unconscionable when the amount compared to the value of the property is so disproportionate as to be revolting to human conscience.

The transferor shall exercise his right to redeem within fifteen years from date of transfer. The NCIP shall provide, as part of its Rules of Procedures, the process for the exercise of this right. It shall include the filing of a petition therefor stating the circumstances of vitiated consent or unconscionable price; due notice and hearing; and the reconveyance of the property to the transferor ICC/IP.

Section 3. Option to Secure Patents under Commonwealth Act No. 141, as Amended. Formal recognition of native title to ancestral lands is secured through the issuance of a Certificate of Ancestral Land Title under the Act.

Members of the ICCs/IP communities who individually own ancestral lands shall have the option to secure Certificates of Title to such land pursuant to the provisions of Commonwealth Act No. 141, as amended, provided such option is exercised within twenty (20) years from approval of the Act.

Pursuant to Section 12 of the Act, all ancestral lands which have been individually owned and actually used continuously by ICCs/IPs for a period of at least thirty (30) years for agricultural, residential, pasture, or tree farming purposes, including those with slope of more than eighteen (18) degrees are hereby classified as alienable and disposable agricultural lands and may be titled in accordance with the provisions of Commonwealth Act No. 141, as amended.

Ancestral lands within ancestral domains shall remain an integral part thereof and can only be transferred or otherwise encumbered subject to customary laws and traditions of the community where the same is located.

Part IV. Responsibilities of ICCs/IPs to their Ancestral Domains

Section 1. Maintain Ecological Balance. Based on their indigenous and traditional practices, ICCs/IPs shall formulate and implement their respective systems for protecting and conserving the flora and fauna, watershed areas, sacred places and all other objects of ritual and ecological importance in order to preserve, restore and maintain a balanced ecology within their ancestral domains. To ensure biological diversity, sustainable indigenous agriculture shall be encouraged while the system of mono-cropping shall be discouraged.

The ICCs/IPs shall establish their own institutions, systems and standards for protecting their natural resources. Such standards shall consider the national standards as minimum, without prejudice to imposing stricter standards. For this purpose, the ICCs/IPs shall be authorized by the government, through appropriate issuance, to exercise powers to apprehend and prosecute all persons violating environmental and natural resources laws within ancestral domains in accordance with Section 72 of the Act.

The ICCs/IPs shall have access to all government funds earmarked for environmental protection in relation to their domains. For this purpose, the NCIP shall negotiate and enter into agreements with concerned agencies for the effective transfer of funds appropriated for such purposes to the concerned indigenous peoples' communities through the NCIP.

The ICCs/IPs may, on their own initiative, likewise secure funds for such purposes from other local and foreign sources.

Section 2. Restore Denuded Areas. The concerned ICCs/IPs, in collaboration with appropriate government agencies, shall restore denuded areas within their ancestral domains.

In cases where the denudation of areas within the domains is caused by identified natural resource licensees, the ICCs/IPs through the NCIP shall make the proper representation to the appropriate government agency for the enforcement of the licensees' obligation under the contract to reforest said areas. Should the licensee fail to implement a restoration program, the concerned government agency shall cause the execution of the bond and apply the same in favor of the ICCs/IPs, without prejudice to payment of compensation for damages to the ancestral domains' eco-systems.

Through their own POs, the concerned ICCs/IPs shall develop their own systems for undertaking reforestation projects under such terms and conditions that will ensure the application of IKSPs and customary laws, and the promotion and propagation of indigenous species as well as those of ecological importance. All such projects shall be considered an integral part of the domains and are therefore communally-owned by such ICCs/IPs.

The management of all existing government reforestation projects within the ancestral domains shall be transferred to the NCIP through the execution of the appropriate instruments. The NCIP, in turn, shall execute Memoranda of Agreement with concerned ICCs/IPs for the implementation of the projects.

Section 3 . Observe Laws. In maintaining ecological balance and restoring denuded areas within their ancestral domains, the ICCs/IPs shall adhere to the letter, spirit and intent of the Act.
